areas of expertise:
destination services

Christopher joined PKF in 2018. Based in Vienna, he is responsible for destination services with a focus on Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

Christopher graduated at the IMC University of Applied Sciences Krems (Austria) studying tourism management in 2003. Before joining PKF Christopher worked for several consultancies in Austria and Russia and an IT-company offering solutions for tourism destinations. He is an expert in tourism destination development on a national, regional and local level, mainly working with the respective public administrations responsible for tourism development in a destination. Between 2003 and 2018 he implemented more than 50 tourism development projects in 20 countries, with a focus on Southeastern- and Eastern Europe and Christopher was invited as a speaker at a few dozen tourism conferences in 18 countries.

Christopher has close ties to the destination department of the UN World Tourism Organization and acted as a Scientific Director of the 9th and 10th World Congress on Snow and Mountain Tourism in Andorra. Furthermore, he was selected to be the UN World Tourism Organization-Consultant for the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Euro-Asian Mountain Resort Conference in Almaty (Kazakhstan), Ulsan (South Korea) and Tbilisi (Georgia).

Besides his distinctive preference for travelling, both for business and pleasure, Christopher devotes himself to his activity as a lecturer at the IMC University of Applied Sciences Krems lecturing “International Consulting – Destination Development” since 2016.
